reflections and afterthoughts of academics

Reflections and afterthoughts show that the academic curriculum is the keystone upon which Lapel High is built. Extensive courses are offered for the college bound student in mathematics, English, varied sciences, and languages. Secretarial studies and practical business transactions with laboratory are courses for the business minded. Home economics, vocational agriculture, and industrial arts provide valuable knowledge for vocations. Physical education for all provides physical fitness to make a graduate of Lapel a well-rounded individual with a keystone curriculum upon which to mold a future.

The English department, one of the largest departments at Lapel, plays an important role in curriculum requirements. From seventh grade through the eleventh grade, English, grammar and literature, one semester each, are required for all students. The senior class is offered both practical English and college English. In practical English students learn basic grammar fundamentals, public speaking, and creative writing. English literature is also studied one semester. College English is a preparatory course for those students planning to attend college. It's goal is to train the students in public speaking, to be adept in creative and technical writing, and to be comprehensive in the field of literature. Those working to make our English department a success are Mrs. Noggle, Mrs. Hersberger, Mrs. Whalen, and Mr. Benner.

At the present time the Language department offers two year courses in Latin, French, and Spanish. Plans are currently being made to extend the program for more advanced study.

The Spanish class, taught by Mrs. Trisler, is using new methods such as tape recordings and film strips to aid the slow process of learning.

Although Latin is not spoken in the modern world, the students gain a knowledge of many English words derived from the ancient language. Taught by Mrs. Noggle, the class translations also add an historic background of the Roman Empire.

The French classes under the instruction of Mrs. Whalen learn the grammar fundamentals along with being able to speak the language fluently.

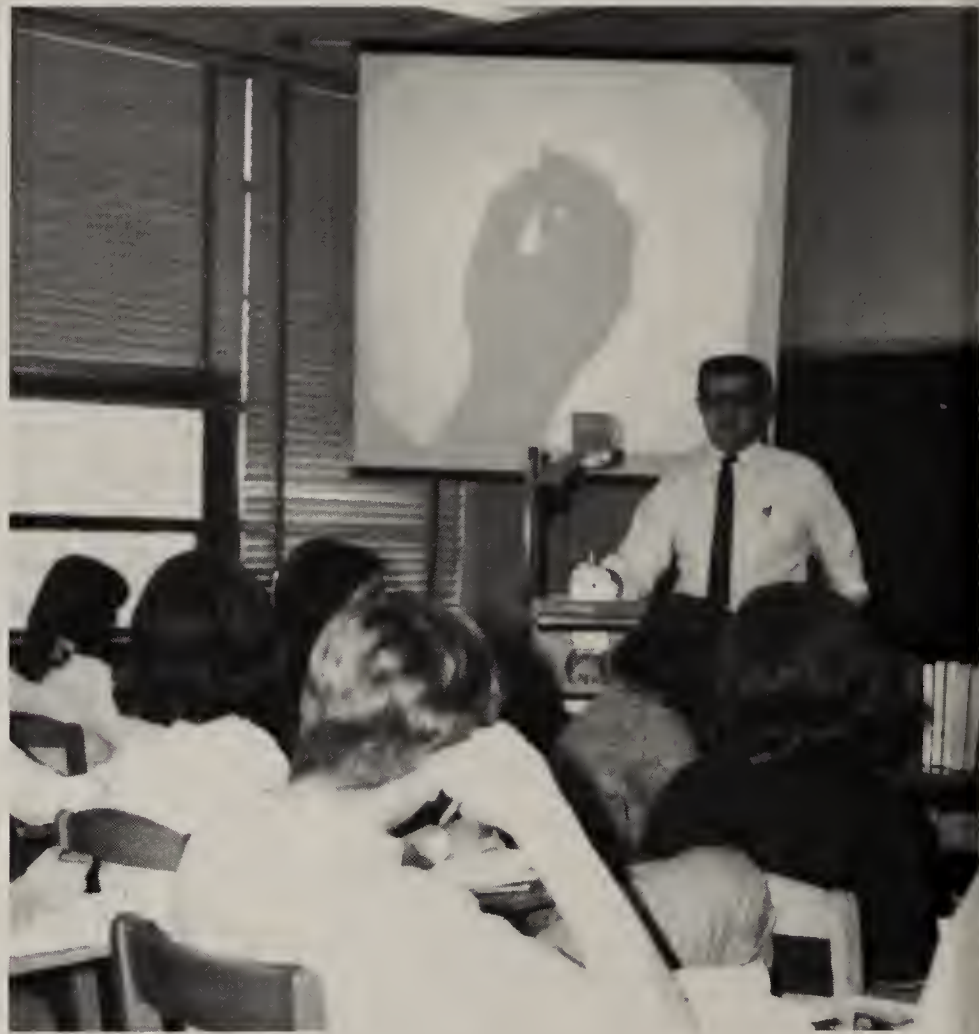

new teachers for math students

Nineteen seventy saw a complete reshuffling of the Math department. Headed by Mr. Gelbach, who teaches Senior Math, geometry, and Freshman Algebra, this department better prepares students for college than ever before. Mr. Pearson was advanced to teach second year algebra and Mr. Eckhardt teaches junior high math.

A new purpose, that of preparing students for college math, has been instilled in Lapel's Math department. To this end, plans are currently being made to offer a five year course.

RIGHT--Mr. Pearson uses the overhead projector to illustrate an Algebra II problem. BELOW--D'Ann Teeters questions an answer in Mr. Gelbach's Senior Math course.

the sciences explain the physical world

College-bound students deal closely with the Science department at L. H. S. Headed by Mrs. Snyder, it gives the student a knowledge of our world and why it works. From junior high science, taught by Mr. Hunter and Mrs. Michaels, to general science, biology, chemistry, and physics, all taught by Mrs. Snyder, students gain deeper insights into our world and its preservation.

Social studies takes various forms throughout junior high and high school. World Geography and Indiana History are offered to the junior high students. Sophomores study World History in order to obtain a background of knowledge about the world in which they live, while the upperclassmen study American History and government. These classes supply them with information vital to everyone's life.

The seniors take a special course in sociology for one semester. In this class the students are encouraged to express their own opinions and to conduct experiments which can be applied to their everyday lives.

Through combined efforts of Miss Rockey, Mr. Brookfield, Mr. Pike, and Mr. Trisler our social studies courses offer the student a chance to explore the past, present, and future.

students gain knowledge of business world

In fulfilling its well-rounded curriculum, Lapel offers several courses for the business minded individual. Two years of typing and shorthand are available for the interested students. Business Economics, General Business, Secretarial Training, and Bookkeeping are other courses arranged to provide the students with the information needed for advancement in the ever increasing business world of today.

Under the experienced leadership of Mr. French and Mr. Trippeer, the Industrial Arts department teaches boys to work with tools and materials.

Mr. French directs the Wood, Metal, and Electronics Shops (grades 10, 11, and 12) as well as giving junior high school boys an introduction to shop methods.

Basic drawing, machine drawing, and architecture are taught by Mr. Trippeer. His time is also used to instruct 7th and 8th graders on the arts of leathercraft and plastics.

industrial arts—creativity

Home Economics classes, under the instruction of Mrs. Huntzinger, offered at Lapel are very beneficial to those girls who are interested in being a good wife and mother, a nurse, or a teacher. The girls study food preparation, child care, family development, personality, consumer buying, and the management of their own home.

The senior girls prepared a Christmas banquet for the invited faculty. The classes visited a laundry exhibit, the Home Show, and the Kroger Distribution Center.

agriculture— product proficiency

Lapel High offers a curriculum in agriculture which prepares the vocational student for his future. Agriculture courses are offered alternate years to combine classes. Freshmen and Sophomore boys are taught courses I and II, while Juniors and Seniors are taught courses III and IV.

The Agriculture class participates in a varied number of activities. Included in these are: land judging, crop judging, poultry judging, F.F.A. contest, and various beneficial field trips.

The F.F.A. plays an important role in the Agriculture program by preparing the students for judging and competing with other boys in many farming practices.

A student's life at Lapel is enriched with the opportunities for educational development in art and music classes.

In art classes, under the supervision of Mrs. Michaels and Miss Lyon, drawing, painting, crafts, and ceramics are offered to those students who possess artistic talent. Their ability to express themselves in these classes is invaluable, because self-expression of emotions is vital for everyone. Art education provides the students with the opportunity to develop their creative potential.

The Music department strives to promote for the students an interest and appreciation for all fields of music. They not only learn singing and playing techniques, but they also study composers, styles, and methods. Through participation in Concert and Marching Band, Concert Choir, Girl's Choir, and Swing Choir, the students develop their individual talents and they also learn the importance of working together and the necessity of cooperation. Mr. Adams, Mr. Wampler, and Miss Terhune work together to make this phase of cultural enrichment a business.

guidance and audio-visual depts. help students through high school

The Audio-Visual department enhances learning through sight and sound. With the aid of student technicians, Mr. Trippeer supervises the use of the projectors and is responsible for the care of the visual-aid equipment. The equipment is a great benefit to the school, for it makes memorization easier.

Headed by Mr. Trisler and Mrs. Huntzinger, the guidance office serves all members of the school by keeping records of students' grades and scores on achievement tests, and information about colleges and careers. This department is one of the most valuable in the school.

phys. ed. breaks rigor of learning

Many are the benefits offered by the physical education curriculum of Lapel High. Body and muscular co-ordination are important in the development of the body and mind. Through proper exercise, resistance is strengthened which acts as a preventive for illness.

Volleyball, basketball, kickball, calisthenics, tumbling, and square dancing are included in the physical education classes.

Sportsmanship is the chief goal as the teachers strive to create group unity based upon respect for the opponent.

organizations— quality not quantity

Corsages and memory booklets from the Prom, the variety shows and booths at the Halloween Carnival, the food at the Roman banquet, the prize ribbons for judging contests: these are the events which make all the activities of organizations memorable.

The success of any organization depends entirely on the people associated with it. Success is measured by the quality of activities and not by the number.

Lapel has a varied program to provide an opportunity for students to work together and to display their talents. The goal of these activities is to enhance the students cultural and social needs.

"It's Great to be Crazy" was a three act comedy in which Betty Lou, Brenda Pitcock, thinking she might be related to Elizabeth Barrett Browning, decided to trace her family tree. Results were disastrous.

Mike Bolton and Rex Passwater, as Hercules and Wilbur, kept the crowd on their toes with their magical tricks and corny jokes. "It's Great to be Crazy" was directed by Mrs. Sue Hersberger and presented on March 21, 1969.

first fun project of season

Carnival time entered Lapel on October 31, for all.

The elementary pupils came as the customary Halloween characters to spend their money at the sweets, cider and doughnuts, ring toss, football throw, fish pond, and the cake walk booths, which filled the gym floor.

The door prizes donated by community businesses were awarded on the entrance tickets.

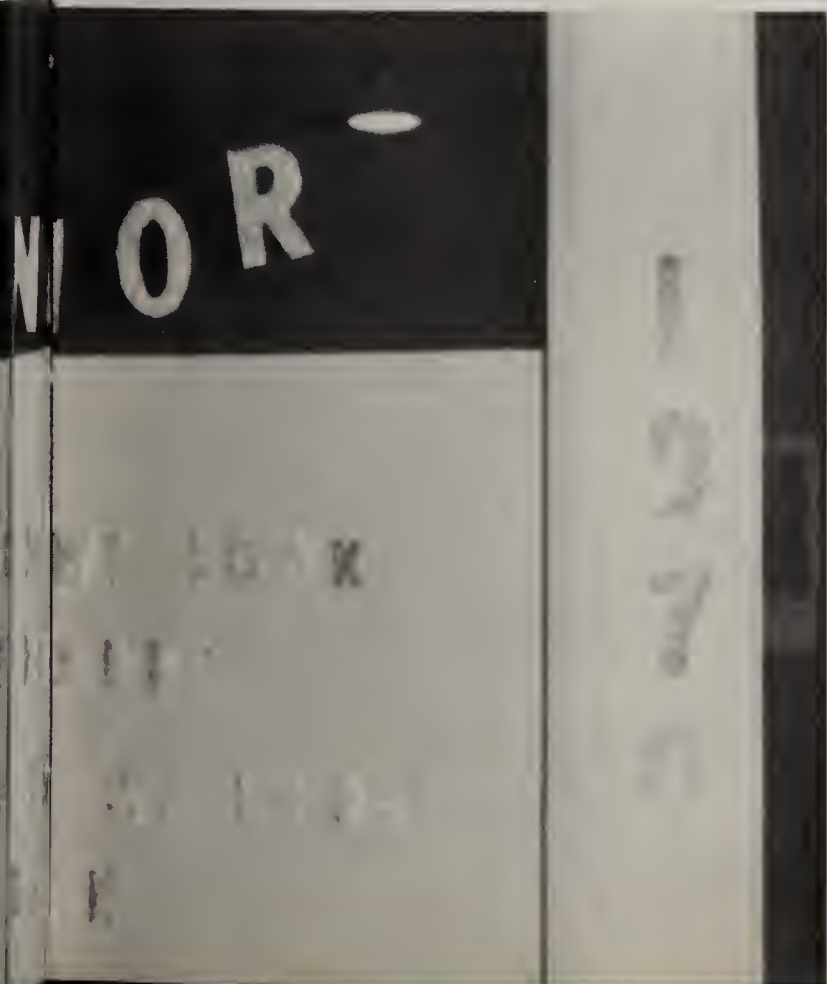

The Freshmen representatives won in the king and queen competition.

victory highlights homecoming

The 1969 Homecoming added a touch of excitement for basketball fans December 12, 1969. The evening was kicked off with a B-Team victory. Between games, the L.H.S. Marching Band continued the gaiety, providing musical entertainment prior to the crowning of the queen. The crowd hushed as Miss Susan Barnhizer was crowned the 1969 Homecoming Queen. She reigned over the presentation of the floats at the half of the Varsity game and saw the Class of 1971 carry home the honors for the third consecutive year. The evening was completed on a gay note as Lapel defeated Blue River 71--60.

The purpose of the Student Council is to act as a mediator between the student body and faculty. It is composed of four members from each of the high school classes and two members from each of the junior high classes.

The Student Council made 1969-1970 a very active and successful year. They revised the student handbook, sponsored the Halloween Carnival, the Homecoming, the Spring Dance, sock-hops, convocations, and attended the state convention in Frankfort, Indiana.

This organization is sponsored by Miss Rockey. The 1969-1970 officers are Terry Woodward, president; Kyle Wolfe, vice-president; Sue Beanblossom, secretary; and Marka Maxwell, treasurer.

The National Honor Society, sponsored by Mrs. Noggle, is one of the active organizations in the school. The select group of juniors and seniors sponsor such activities as skating parties, and the Christmas and Easter convocations. Membership in the National Honor Society is based on a student's leadership, scholarship, service, and character to his school and community.

The Latin Club consisted of thirty members who have had at least one year of Latin. This year the club held a slave day, had a fortune telling booth at the Halloween Carnival, and held a Roman banquet this spring.

The officers are president, Paul Hughes; vice-president, Jim Bauer; secretary, Rosalie Huntzinger; treasurer, Mark Eliason; and reporter, Bub Buckner.

sunshine girls work for charity

The Sunshine Society is an organization designed to spread cheer and good will throughout the community. This year it has been very active in its many projects including the sponsoring of a small Korean girl and a clothing drive for the underprivileged people in the Appalachian Mountains. They also make Christmas a little happier for a needy family and make favors for hospital patients. School activities sponsored by the Sunshine Society are a special dance and sock-hops.

This organization is very rewarding and fulfilling for its active members and can be an important part of a high school girl's life.

The officers are Debby Wise, president; Jody Castor, vice-president; Cindy Caplinger, secretary; Sharon Schuyler, treasurer; and Mrs. Huntzinger and Mrs. Worton are the sponsors.

swing choir enlivens music department

The Swing Choir, in its second year, has performed for several school convocations and special events. They have sung for several civic, social, and church groups in and around Lapel. The organization is completely extra-curricular, with no credit given. The Swing Choir performed 28 times last year and almost doubled that figure this year.

reflections and afterthoughts of sports

The role sports play in developing and molding youths is essential and important. Creative people are developed not only through studies but also through worthwhile sports activities.

Lapel offers a varied sports program to meet the interests of all boys. The boys display their ability while learning to work together for a common goal.

According to Indiana High School Athletic Association rules the school participates in interschool games in baseball, track, basketball, cross country and golf. These rules determine the eligibility for team member.

Athletes of Lapel represent Lapel at all competitions.

The 1969 baseball team recorded 3 wins and 14 losses for the season's play.

Handicapped by the lack of depth in the pitching staff the team placed sixth in the White River Conference. Senior David Fuqua was chosen as Lapel's representative to the All-Conference baseball team.

Mr. Dallas Hunter in his second year as baseball coach made an effort to develop a winning team from inexperienced players. With the players having gained experience this season next year's team promises better results.

The Lapel High School varsity cross country team, coached by Dallas Hunter, had an outstanding 1969 season. Victorious in 13 of 15 matches, the Bulldogs placed second in the White River Conference competition. The Bulldogs also placed fourth in the sectional match.

The Bulldog fans are very proud of their team and anxiously await the 1970 season.

The spirit of Lapel High is a reflection of the cheerleaders. The morale and pep of both the team and spectators are in their hands. The cheerleaders' job is to see that the players get support.

The cheerleaders are chosen on the basis of their ability. After a competitive try-out, the four chosen for varsity cheerleading go to a camp in Ohio for special training. These girls prompt our team to a victory during basketball season and they also participate in pep rallies.

In addition to the varsity group there is a "B" team group and one for each of the Freshmen and Junior high classes.

Each group performs for its team at all the games.

reflections and after thoughts of people

People are the most important part of any school. They make up its organizations, athletics, and activities. The enthusiasm and character of the students are the factors which make a school successful.

The kind and happy faces of friends and schoolmates reflect warmth and cheer throughout the halls and create a more enjoyable school year for all.

Each student plays a part in the educational society. He advances himself by knowledge gained through classes and extra-curricular activities. The memories of activities shared with friends will be a part of student after-thoughts for many years.

The class of 1970, 85 students, have reached the pinnacle of achievement in their high school careers. Released upon the world, they have the courage to keep the rights and change the wrongs of society.

Each will play a leading role in helping secure peace in tomorrow's troubled civilization.

Our seniors are prepared to draw in the fresh air of a new life.

Commencement and Graduation . . . the beginning of the end for the class of 1970. After twelve years of work, seniors feel they are prepared to embark on the most important step thus far in their lives. They are today's students . . . tomorrow's leaders. What they make of the world will depend on their high school background. They feel Lapel High School has prepared them admirably.

In thinking of what is to be done about the future, the seniors inevitably review the past. For them, there have been carnivals, homecomings, pep assemblies, basketball games, hours of study for tests, proms, a senior week, and finally graduation. They have taken the bitter and the sweet. There have been moments of happiness and times of crisis. These all have prepared the Seniors for life in an uncompromising world.

From this class will come ambitious young adults who will fill many of the important jobs advanced civilization will need to sustain itself. May all the luck, success, and wisdom in the world follow this class. May this class make the decisions necessary so that these words may be applied to succeeding classes.

elementary teachers provide basic foundations for grasping minds

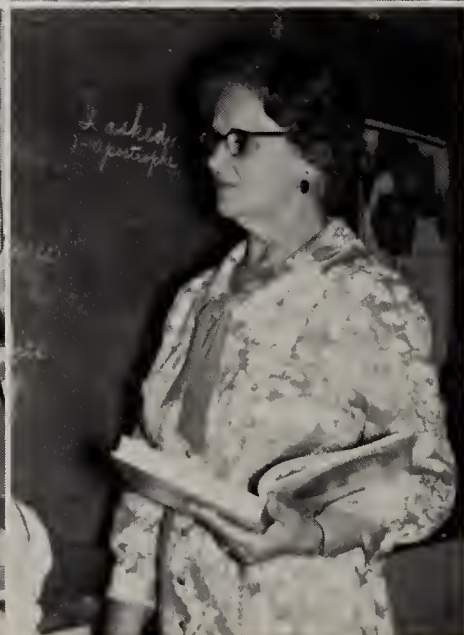

The elementary teachers play an important role in the cultivation of young minds for future life. Younger children are prepared for their high school years by learning the basic fundamentals necessary for success in higher learning and future achievements.

Although some of the teachers are aided by cadet teachers and all classes have art and music instruction, these teachers are still the principal force shaping the lives of the students. The teachers work hard guiding and directing the students in the first processes of learning, providing for them an adequate background.

miss kyle wolfe
reigns as 1970 yearbook queen

Kyle Wolfe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laile Wolfe, was chosen Queen by the annual staff for her contributions to the 1969-70 annual. As co-editor of the annual, she completed one-third of the pages of the annual.

Kyle's activities at L.H.S. included the Student Council, National Honor Society, Cadet Teaching, Pep Club, and class plays and chorus. Kyle was also active in Job's Daughters. Kyle will attend I.U.

Bonnie Needler won the Betty Crocker Homemaker award.

L.H.S. receives recognition through the achievements of outstanding students.

The Betty Crocker Homemaker award was won by Bonnie Needler, American Legion's Boy's State was won by Rex Layton and Mike Poston, and Girl's Staters were Terry Woodward and Nancy Sylvester.

Brenda Paulsel represented Madison County in the new aero-education trip to Washington, D. C.

Outstanding Teenagers were Mike Poston, Kyle Wolfe, and Kevin Castor.

Mike Poston, a finalist in the National Merit Scholarship competition, won the highest academic award of L.H.S.

majority of seniors are twelve year classmates

The class of 1970 had more students who attended Lapel School for 12 consecutive years than any other class.

Uniting in 1958 they worked, worried, and played together through elementary, junior high, and high school.

Though conflicts were prevalent, the friendships nurtured over this period of time helped to strengthen the spirit and closely bind the members of the class.

As these students retraced their steps down the aisle with diplomas in hand, they realized that this was an end to the good times of the past, but was also a beginning for higher achievements in the future.

Three outstanding qualifications of a school system are prompt transportation, clean rooms and healthful food. Lapel meets these standards with bus drivers who provide prompt transportation for students, having them at school by 8:00 a.m. and returning them by 3:30 p.m.; with custodians who sweep and polish the floors and clean the windows, providing an exhilarating environment in which to study; with cafeteria workers who provide well-balanced meals, furnishing the nourishment needed to induce study as well as relaxation.

Education is a gas.

It lights up dark places.

It lifts your sights.

It inflates the ego.

Not everybody likes it.

But nobody goes far without it.

And the more you have,
the farther you can go.

We hope you'll keep going with your education. And, when the time comes, you'll think about Delco-Remy as a good place to work.

Work on this book was begun in March, 1969, by the advisor, the three editors, and their staff. The major events between March, 1969, and March, 1970, have been covered; some happenings of lesser importance also occupy space in the 1970 BULL-DOG. We hope our efforts have done justice to our purpose: that of presenting the highlights of the school year.

The BULLDOG staff wishes to give its sincere thanks to Miss Lucille Rockey, who stood by us in times of nearly-missed deadlines; Mr. William Wright, our consultant from American Yearbook Company; Mike Bolton and Anderson Newspapers, Inc., for basketball pictures; and Mr. and Mrs. Laile Wolfe, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bauer, and Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Poston, for their patience and understanding throughout the long year. Finally, we would like to thank Miss Diane Pitcock, Miss Pam Fisher, and Miss Jeanine Lackey, Class of '69, for their help in meeting our deadlines.
